

ENGINEERS WIN
PARTIAL VICTORY

Local Enginemen Will be Benefitted
by New Wage Scale Announced by Arbitration Board.

EFFECTIVE FROM MAY 1st

Wages Will be Based Upon the Size of Cylinder Instead of the Weight of the Engine.

Many of the locomotive engineers who live in this city will be benefitted by the new wage scale which has been announced by the arbitration board appointed to settle the difficulty arising when 30,000 engineers employed by fifty-two railroad companies operating in the territory east of Chicago and north of the Ohio river asked for increased wages. The demand was made in April and the compromise has been under consideration since that time.

Under the new scale the wages are based upon the size of the cylinder of the engine. The increase will be dated back from May 1. The new basis of computing wages and the time when the increase starts will mean an immense amount of work for the time keepers of the B. & O. S-W. Heretofore the wages have been computed upon the weight of the engine and the new table must be made. It will also be necessary for the time-keepers to go back through their records from May 1 to compute the increase due the engineers. The compromise of the case is said to be the greatest work of arbitration since the anthracite coal strike in 1902.

The award grants certain increased compensation and improved the uniform rules of service requested by the engineers, but holds that a general increase of wages on all roads is not warranted upon the basis of the evidence presented.

The report suggests the creation of Federal and state wage commissions which shall exercise functions regarding labor engaged upon public utilities, analogous to those exercised with regard to capital by the public service commissions already in existence. The representative of the engineers on the board, P. H. Morrissey, dissented from this suggestion, which, as said, in its effect virtually meant compulsory arbitration and was wholly impracticable.

In the past, with several notable exceptions, the contracts between the roads and the engineers have been renewed annually. The agreement made necessary by the arbitration board's decision, however, may not be renewed after its expiration May 1, 1913.

Mr. Morrissey, representing the engineers, already has indicated doubt as to its renewal. The attitude of the railroads, as outlined in a statement today by President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, who represented the railroads on the arbitration board, is likewise indefinite as to the future.

"My acceptance of the award as a whole does not signify my approval of all the findings in detail," said President Willard. He added that "although the award is not such as the railroads had hoped for," nor such as they felt justified by the facts, "they now accept without question the conclusion which was reached."

Following are the more important of the awards and the requests of the engineers:

In passenger service, a minimum wage was granted of $4.25 for 100 miles or less and an overtime rate of 50 cents an hour, with an average speed of twenty miles an hour. The engineers asked $4.40 and $4.60 a day of 100 miles, according to the size of the locomotive cylinder, with an overtime rate of 70 cents an hour after five hours.

In through freight service, a minimum was granted of $4.75 a day of 100 miles or less, with overtime pay at ten hours. The engineers requested rates of $5.25, $5.50 and $5.75 a day of 100 miles, according to size of engine, and $7 for Mailett engines; the same rates to apply to mine runs, work, wreck, helper or pusher, milk or circus trains.

In local freight service, 25 cents additional to the through freight rates was granted. This met the full request of the engineers.

In switching service, a minimum of $4.10 a day of ten hours or less was granted. The engineers asked $4.50 a day of ten hours in switching service and for belt line service.

All existing rates higher than the minimum granted by the board are continued in force.

In fixing the minimum wage in passenger service at $4.25 a day, a higher minimum rate is established for the roads which are parties to the arbitration, with the exception of a few.

In awarding the minimum through freight rate of $4.75 a day, the board establishes wages for the district that measurably approach the current minimum of roads now paying the better rates. In making the rate for local freight service 25 cents higher than through freight service, a general increase of compensation is granted.

The effect of the twenty-mile-an-hour basis of computing overtime in passenger service, the rules regarding final terminal delay and other changes in the rules of service are all more favorable to the engineers than existing rules upon many of the roads.

The railroads held that the engineers now receive not only a fair, but a liberal compensation for the work performed, being the highest paid class of employees in the railroad service; that the hours of duty were limited and other conditions of service so arranged as to relieve the engineers, in the normal course of work, of excessive strain, and that there had been no change in working conditions since the last wage adjustment, now requiring adjustment. Also the railroad held that they were financially unable to meet the increase compensation asked.

FATALLY HURT BY
LEAP FROM WINDOW

William Abbott, While Delirious,
Plunged From Second Story of City
Hospital at Indianapolis.

FORMERLY LIVED IN SEYMOUR

Patient Suffered a Broken Leg and Internal Injuries—Coroner is Making an Investigation.

William Abbott, of this city, died late Saturday afternoon from injuries he received when he plunged from the second story window of the Indianapolis City Hospital Friday morning while in a delirious condition. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Abbott, received a message Saturday that their son was in a serious condition but the telegram did not state the particulars.

Mr. Abbott was taken to the Indianapolis hospital Thursday night in a delirium. It was believed that he was suffering from a contagious disease and as he could not be aroused it was necessary to confine him in the detention ward. He was permitted to lie on a cot on the second floor of what is known as the annex. Other patients were in the room at the time he jumped from the window.

The patient was seen to leave his bed but before he could be stopped by a nurse he uttered a cry and sprang towards the window. Without warning he leaped through the glass and carrying the sash with him, fell to the pavement below. When he was picked up he was unconscious and was returned to the hospital where he died Saturday afternoon. An examination showed that he suffered a broken leg and internal injuries which, added to the serious malady from which he was suffering, resulted in his death.

Mr. Abbott was forty-two years of age and lived in this city practically all of his life until about three or four weeks ago when he went to Indianapolis to secure employment. A short time ago he was taken ill but his condition at first was not considered serious. Later, however, his sickness developed into a contagious disease and it was necessary to take him to the city hospital where every attention could be given him. He is survived by his parents, his widow, two sons and a daughter. About a year and a half ago his son, about five years old, was killed in the B. & O. yards by a freight train which was switching.

ON SALE THURSDAY

Four Million Seals Will Be Distributed to Various Agents in the State Before That Date.

VICE-PRESIDENTS APPOINTED

These Will Have Direct Charge of the Work in the Counties—Each Township Will Have Chairman.

The sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals is to begin simultaneously throughout Indiana on Thanksgiving Day. This is the announcement which comes from the state headquarters in Indianapolis and the work of distributing 4,000,000 seals to the several agents has already begun. The mark aimed at this season is 2,000,000 seals, and it is the policy to place in agents' hands twice as many as will be sold so that there may at all times be a supply on hands.

Under a new arrangement in this state this year a vice-president has been appointed for each county who will have charge of the sale of the sale of the stamps. Chairmen are also appointed for the various townships by the vice-presidents. It is believed that this plan will aid in a larger sale of stamps. The vice-president for Jackson county will likely be appointed within a few days, but it is understood that the sale will begin on Thanksgiving day whether the officer is appointed before that time or not. The stamps this year are attractive, carrying out the Christmas idea in coloring and design.

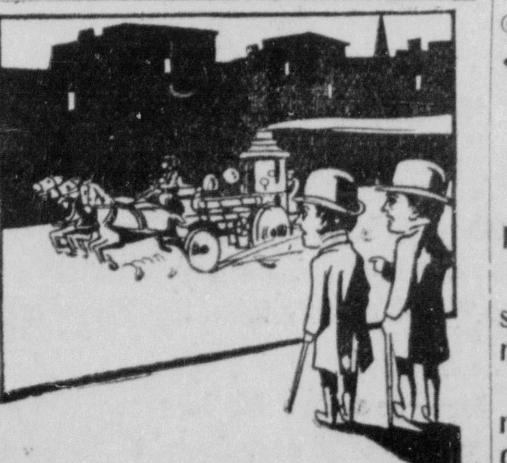

The campaign is being conducted by the Christmas Seals Commission of the Indiana Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. This commission is composed of Severance Burrage, James W. Lilly, Dr. Theodore Potter, Mrs. Lew W. Ellingham and Dr. Henry Moore. Headquarters have been opened in Room 119 United States Postoffice building in Indianapolis.

By a new arrangement, ninety per cent. of the total amount raised by the sale of seals in Indiana this season, will remain in the state as a war fund for carrying on a vigorous fight against tuberculosis. And it is the policy of the Indiana Association to leave as much of the money as possible in the communities where it is raised.

This is especially true in counties where there are regularly organized Associations for fighting tuberculosis. Such organizations are acting as county agents for the sale of seals, having the exclusive right of selling seals in their own counties.

Indiana made the largest gain of any state in the sale of seals last season and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which is directing the national campaign has set a high mark for Indiana to reach this year. It is believed that a number of communities will raise enough money by the sale of the seals to enable them to establish camps for the treatment of tubercular patients. Others will use the money for educational purposes.

The seals sell for one cent each, and although they are not good for postage, they carry cheery holiday messages.

HUSKING CORN

Number of Jackson County Men Are Employed in the West.

A number of the young men from this county are employed in the Western states this fall where they have secured work in the corn fields. Every year quite a number of farmers from this county go West and return after the corn is gathered. Several are in Illinois, Iowa and other states where the corn crop is large.

They have no difficulty in finding work for farm hands are always in demand in the corn producing states at this time of the year. Good wages with board and lodging are offered as an inducement to the Eastern farmers. Some of the men who make annual trips to the West declare that after they pay their fare they do not make any more and sometimes not as much as if they remained here, but it is a good opportunity to see the country and for this reason take advantage of the offers. Several of the young farmers who left here worked in Illinois for several weeks and then went into Iowa or other states further west. Most of them will return to this county before Christmas.

FOR THE CABINET

Four Places Reported to Have Been Settled by Wilson.

Four of the nine men to whom offices of Cabinet positions will be made by President-elect Wilson are now known with practical certainty, according to Washington dispatches. They are William J. Bryan of Nebraska, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, Albert S. Burleson of Texas and A. Mitchell Palmer of Pennsylvania.

The post of secretary of state, the premiership of the administration, will be offered to Mr. Bryan. Daniels probably will be offered the postmaster generalship. Burleson will be given either the secretaryship of the interior or the secretaryship of agriculture. A. Mitchell Palmer is believed to be on the slate for one of three positions—attorney general, secretary of commerce and labor or secretary of war.

Dispatches Say Turks and Allies Will Lay Down Their Arms Pending Peace Negotiations.

FIGHTING CEASES FOR A WEEK

Reported That Eight Hundred Bulgars and Servians Were Taken Prisoners by Sultan's Army.

London, November 25.—Word comes from Constantinople today that Turkey and the Balkan allies have agreed on a week's armistice.

A special dispatch from the Turkish headquarters at Hademkei says the Ottoman troops captured eight hundred Bulgarian and Servian prisoners during the last engagement with the Bulgarian right wing on the Tchatalja lines.

That Turkey is in position to demand moderately liberal terms from the Balkan allies was the general opinion in official circles in London today.

Stories of the collapse of Bulgaria's campaign were borne out by information received here from Sofia. The whole country has been swept clean of every man strong enough to carry a rifle. One authority expressed the doubt whether another complete company could be scraped together.

Obviously, whatever Bulgaria plans to accomplish in the pending campaign it must accomplish with its present army, it was pointed out, because it absolutely can not be increased by a man—will grow weaker, in fact, henceforward.

The Servians and Greeks were prepared to reinforce the Bulgarians, it was said. But this is not taken seriously. Both of them have big conquered territory to guard and will need every man they have to do it. It was indicated by all the news received from the Balkans today that the allies, and especially the Bulgarians, realize the necessity for terminating the campaign speedily.

PING MURDER TRIAL

Started at Bedford Today Before
Judge O. O. Swails.

The trial of Mrs. Maude Ping, charged with first degree murder for the killing of her husband, James Ping, whom she shot to death following a quarrel at the supper table, was begun in the Lawrence circuit court today with Judge Oren Swails presiding.

The Ping family was seated at the supper table, April 25 last, when Mrs. Ping suddenly placed a revolver within a foot of her husband's forehead and fired, killing him instantly. Mr. Ping had a child on his lap at the time and the baby fell to the floor while its father's head fell forward on the table. Two other children witnessed the shooting. Emotional insanity, due to jealousy, is the cause given for the crime.

WHAT A PIANO CLUB REALLY IS

Let it be clearly understood at the outset what the necessary elements are to make a Piano Club possible.

FIRST OF ALL, volume of buying and selling. To insure economies it is necessary to operate on a large scale. A railroad runs an excursion train at excursion rates ONLY when it can take a large number of people to a given point AT ONE TIME AND ON ONE TRAIN. Take away large numbers and the excursion would not be possible. For the same reason a Piano Club must include a very much larger body of people, acting at once on a given purchase, than ordinary trade would be able to produce.

No single piano store, no matter how large its trade, could operate a real piano club and save its customer much money. Only a very extensive selling organization, covering large territory, can make this possible.

NEXT TO THIS, and of perhaps equal importance, is the need of that business acumen known as "good buying." This faculty, when backed up with ample capital and extensive selling depots, commands prices which no other influence in this world could obtain.

Now, then, let's apply it: The Montenegro-Riehm Music Co. is one of the largest piano houses. There is scarcely any doubt about that. With a veritable army of salesmen; with able lieutenants whose skill as a buyer and financier is admitted to be of the very highest order of attainment, this company provides the most important requisites for a real Piano Club—large outlet; immense selling organization; capital; buying skill; all the necessary elements to bring about a big trade event such as this big 400 Co-operative Club really is. For it must be remembered that when this company undertakes a Piano Club it BUYS 400 OR MORE PIANOS of one make AT ONE TIME.

Buying 400 pianos of one kind from one maker, and paying spot cash for them, will accomplish something worth while in the way of price saving.

Selling 400 pianos of one kind in one club will make for economies all along the line. One bar of soap will cost 5 cents; 400 bars will bring the price down to 3 cents. One railroad fare to New York—we'll say—is $10.00; 400 such fares and you have an excursion train, and the rate would perhaps be $6.00. One piano costs $400.00; 400 of them, all bought at once and sold in ONE BIG CLUB, and down come costs and expenses, and the price comes down, too, at least $100.00 per piano. Isn't that reasonable?

Any little piano seller can claim to be running a club—there is no law to prevent it; but don't confound such childish boasts with great trade events such as this BIG 400 CO-OPERATIVE PIANO CLUB.

NOTE THE ATTRACTIVE CLUB EXTRAS

A SMALL ENTRANCE FEE is charged, which gives you all these rights and privileges. But the amount is at once applied to the price you agree to pay. Though it is the means of getting you the benefits of the club, it helps pay for the Piano or Player-Piano. This entrance fee is $5.00 if you take the Piano, and weekly payments are $1.25. It is $10.00 if you take the Player-Piano, with monthly payments of $10.00.

FREE MUSIC LESSONS are given to you absolutely free for one year; 52 lessons; one each week at our own private studio. These lessons, if paid for by you, would cost from $1.00 to $1.50 each. By joining this big club you secure these lessons absolutely free. You can have your own Piano nearly paid for before you have to spend one cent for music lessons.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT MUSIC? No home nowadays is complete and no family can gain full realization of happiness without a musical instrument of some kind, of which the Piano is the most desirable and the most appropriate.

The value of a good MUSICAL EDUCATION is appreciated more and more and musical talent is now cultivated in a marked degree by people in all stations of life. It is a social accomplishment of the highest and most desirable kind and gives the possessor an individuality and a social standing that nothing else can give.

LIFE INSURANCE—This is one of the big features of club membership. It means a lot to people of moderate circumstances. It is attractive to anybody. It provides against the possibility of disappointing the ambitious young musician who might have to give up the piano. In case of death of the purchaser of one of our Club Pianos or Players we cancel all remaining payments, if the account is not in arrears, and we give a receipt in full for the Piano or Player-Piano.

YOU MAY EXCHANGE, any time within a year, the instrument you purchase for any one in our house of equal grade, or a higher-priced instrument if you wish, without losing a penny you have paid. It is a positively free exchange privilege, if you should desire to have another Piano or Player. If you should first take the Piano and later decide to take the Player we cheerfully, without question, make the exchange.

ADRIANOPLE IS NEAR ITS FALL

Turks Cannot Hold Out Much Longer.

REINFORCEMENTS POURING IN

Both the Army Before the Ancient Capital of Thrace and the Wearied Bulgars Before the Tchataldja Lines Are Receiving Long Needed Help in the Way of Heavy Guns to Batter Down the Resistance of the Turks.

Vienna, Nov. 25.—The situation is more hopeful than ever because Serbia, recognizing the Austrian view about Albania, demands only an Adriatic port. Meanwhile France is endeavoring to persuade Austria and Serbia to compromise their differences. It is anticipated that Turkey may prolong the war, as Bulgaria's situation in the field, is deplorable. The Bulgarian troops lack food and ammunition and floods have rendered the roads impassable, so that it is impossible to replenish their supplies.

Constantinople, Nov. 25.—The Bulgarian peace negotiators arrived at the Bulgarian headquarters on Saturday. It is expected that they will meet the Turkish plenipotentiaries today. There are, indeed, reports that the two bodies met on Sunday, one story going so far as to say that an armistice for a week was arranged. According to this both sides agreed to keep their respective positions without bringing up any reinforcements. These reports cannot be confirmed.

London, Nov. 25.—Fierce fighting continues around beleaguered Adrianople, and the allies say confidently that the Turks in the city are on the verge of surrendering.

Coming through roads almost impassable because of the floods and through passes that are choked with snow, are the reinforcements for the Bulgars and Serbs, both in front of Adrianople and battling on the Tchataldja lines. With them they are bringing the heavy field guns that the Bulgarians so sorely need in their attempts to pierce the lines held by Nazim Pasha at the Constantinople defenses.

And while they wait the Serbs, upon whom has fallen the brunt of the siege of Adrianople since the Bulgars swung down to Tchataldja, continue to pour a heavy shell fire into the forts.

The Vienna Reichspost prints a dispatch that purports to be inspired by Archduke Francis Ferdinand or some of his advisers that he is returning from his conference with the kaiser in Berlin convinced that if there should be more than mere talk in the quarrel between Austria and Serbia over a strip of seacoast, then Germany will stand shoulder to shoulder with Austria.

With a flotilla of Austrian fighting craft steaming down the Danube to anchor off the capital of the country whose relations with Austria are so strained, with troops marching to the borders of that country, with fighting men called to arms in Germany and Russia, the situation is one of the most nerve-racking tension.

An Especial Source of Worry.

The approach of the Danube flotilla to Belgrade is an especial source of worry to diplomats, who realize what might happen if anything that might be interpreted as hostile should occur while that flotilla was in sight of the Serbs' capital.

On the other hand, strenuous efforts are being made by the French republic to bridge the chasm between Austria and Serbia. The endeavors have not yet emerged from their initial state, but there are sound reasons for assuming that they will be crowned with success. This beneficent action of the French government is a new and important factor in the international drama. As the republic has hitherto given undeniable proofs of warm friendship for Serbia, it has acquired the right to be heard when offering counsels of moderation. Accordingly, between Premier Poincare and the Serbian minister at Paris the subject has been mooted and the conversations are expected to continue.

On these grounds the outlook at the present moment is characterized in some circles as even more reassuring than several days ago. True, war between Austria-Hungary on the one hand and Serbia and Russia on the other, is being spiritedly carried on by the press of the respective countries, whose readers they treat each morning to the rattling of sabers and the clicking of rifles, which heated fancy hears behind the scratching of the mighty pens, and it also is true that there still is profound antagonism of spirit between Slav and Austrian publicist which operates as a troubling medium in distorting ideas that rightfully apprehended would link the two states in friendship. It is understood that Russia is relying on a European conference after the war to settle disputed matters and is determined to avoid war unless in defense of her own frontiers.

Cholera continues its ravages unabated in sad about Constantinople.

SOCIALISTS OPPOSE WAR PREPARATIONS

International Congress Discusses the Situation.

Basle, Nov. 25.—Representing twenty countries, four hundred and fifty delegates met here at the opening session of the International Socialistic congress. Some of the most prominent Socialists in Europe are present and will participate in the congress, which will last three days. These include Dr. Bebel of Germany, Jules Jaures of France, Herr Vandervelde of Belgium, Herr Adler of Austria and Keir Hardie of Great Britain.

The principal object of the congress is to protest against war and the attitude of the great powers. There were forcible speeches on this subject, especially by Jules Jaures and Keir Hardie. The congress will discuss among other things the question of a general strike in the event of a European war. Herr Bebel has been seriously ill and confined to his bed ever since his arrival.

The Parisian View.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Despite the efforts to take an optimistic view of the situation, it is certain that the tension of Europe is very grave. Austria is the darkest factor. The mobilization of the Austrian army is general, although the Viennese newspapers do not print this, as they are under strict censorship in military matters. Italy, for reasons of her own, is anxious to prevent a conflict between her ally, Austria, and Serbia, whereas Germany, the third member of the triple alliance, would be glad to see a rupture between the countries.

Servians Occupy Ochrida.

Belgrade, Nov. 25.—The Servians have occupied Ochrida without opposition. King Peter returned here Sunday after an absence of five weeks at the front. He was saluted by the artillery and welcomed by the ministers and officials and the Russian envoy and by enthusiastic acclamations of citizens along the streets. The city was decorated and illuminated in his honor.

Palemas Taken by Rebels.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 25.—Rebels have retaken the Mexican customs port of Palemas on the Chihuahua-New Mexico state line. The federalists lost seven known killed and eight wounded, including their commander.

MINIMUM WAGE FOR ENGINEERS

Eastern Roads Lose Out in Arbitration.

FIFTY-TWO ROADS AFFECTED

Award of Board of Arbitration Appointed to Adjust Long-Standing Wage Dispute, Brings the Eastern Roads Face to Face With Probable Demands For Increased Wages by the Firemen and Other Employees.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Their fight for an increase in wages has been won by thirty-five thousand locomotive engineers of eastern roads. The board of arbitration between the railroads and the engineers in its award just made public does not grant all of the engineers' demands, but establishes a minimum wage, which amounts to a substantial increase on most of the roads. The award by the board of arbitration probably brings the fifty-two railroads of the east face to face with demands for increased wages by the firemen and other employees.

Notwithstanding the increase in compensation, P. H. Morrissey, the representative of the engineers on the board, dissents from the award and says the settlement accepted by it can be only temporary. The award is retroactive, counting for only one year from May 1, 1912. This means that within five months the railroads of the east probably will be confronted by further demands from the engineers and again may have to meet the possibility of a strike.

May Raise Freight Rates.

The railroads estimated that the demands on the part of the engineers, if granted, would entail an additional expenditure of $7,172,000 a year. If the same percentage of increase were granted to other employees the additional expense would amount in all to $67,000,000. The board of arbitration expresses the opinion that this total is too high, but it does not attempt to give exact figures as to the additional burden that the award may impose upon the railroads of the east. The findings of the arbitration board are regarded here as practically insuring a renewed attempt on the part of the railroads to raise freight rates.

The more important features of the award are: A minimum wage of $4.25 per 100 miles or less for engineers in passenger service, with an overtime rate of 50 cents per hour with an average speed of twenty miles per hour; a minimum of $4.75 for engineers in through freight service per day of 100 miles or less, with overtime pro rata after ten hours; 25 cents additional per day in local freight service, and $4.10 per day of ten hours or less in switching service. All existing rates higher than these minimum are continued in force.

EVERYBODY SATISFIED

That Is What Suffragists Say About Their Convention Row.

Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—The cause of suffrage apparently has triumphed over its internal differences, and today the conquerors and the conquered in the battle of Saturday, when Jane Addams of Chicago, now dubbed "the Moses of suffrage," swept aside all the opposition, defeating Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and her followers, are standing back to back fighting for a country-wide vote for women.

When the aftermath of the battle stopped it looked very much as if the supporters of Mrs. Belmont might withdraw from the National American Woman Suffrage association in their chagrin at being defeated, when they sought to amend the constitution of the organization so that the officers of the association could not ally themselves with any political party.

So serious was the breach that Sunday there was an executive meeting of the executive board of the association for the purpose of discussing the matter. Nothing was given out beyond the statement of the president of the association, Dr. Anna B. Shaw, who said that the matter had been discussed and everybody satisfied, but it is believed that there was a tacit agreement made among the officers that they would not affiliate themselves with any party unless such an affiliation was absolutely necessary.

This promise, it is believed, was the diplomatic sop which was passed to the members who stood by Mrs. Belmont, and were on the losing side of the proposition.

SIOUX RESERVATION SWEEP BY FLAMES

A Thousand Square Miles Devastated.

Pine Ridge Indian Agency, S. D., Nov. 25.—Mostly within the Sioux Indian reservation, a thousand square miles of territory has been swept by a prairie fire of huge proportions. The town of White Owl is reported entirely wiped out. A dozen other towns were threatened. An unknown number of homesteaders' shacks were burned and every soul in a strip ten miles wide and more than 100 miles long is exhausted from having fought fire for almost forty-eight hours without rest. Rumors are that several homesteaders were caught and burned to death.

Practically all telephone wires are down and the full extent of the damage is not yet known. Three different fires started and, fanned by a brisk wind, the flames were soon leaping across the prairie.

At Cut Meat, a station on the Indian reservation, a crowd of Indians fought the fire two days and nights. During the fight the life of a fourteen-year-old Indian boy was saved in a dramatic manner by J. B. Brown, an auto dealer of Valentine, Neb. The boy became surrounded by flames and was on the verge of being burned to death, when Brown secured the assistance of a volunteer. Both wrapped themselves in wet blankets and drove the auto through the wall of fire to the lad. As it sped by the boy the volunteer grabbed him and jerked him into the auto, which kept on through the second wall of fire to safety. All three were singed and the machine was blistered.

HAD GONE THE PACE

Member of Prominent Family Arrested on Forgery Charge.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25.—Claiming that he is a graduate of Yale, a member of an influential family, and that five different times he has been president of big coal concerns, Henry Ames Van Auten of New York city was arrested at a leading Atlanta club to answer the charge of passing worthless checks at various places.

Van Auten takes his arrest coolly. "I have gone such a pace I have burnt up my tires," he said, "but I'm smart enough to face the music, and it may be well to add that when you dance there is the fiddler to be paid."

Collided With Touring Car.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 25.—William B. Armstrong, former inspector at the office of the state architect, was killed last night in an automobile accident on the road from Glens Falls to Saratoga. Charles A. Sussdorf, assistant deputy state architect, the other occupant, was injured critically. The automobile collided with a heavy touring car.

The Evidence All In.

Middletown, N. Y., Nov. 25.—The defense in the case of Burton W. Gibson, the New York lawyer charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo at Greenwood, July 16, closed its case shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, and Robert H. Elder, counsel for Gibson, began summing up. The case will be given to the jury late this afternoon.

New Trial Denied.

Columbus, Ind., Nov. 25.—Anzer Reed, who was convicted here during the September term of court on a charge of dynamiting the heating plant of the school building at Hope, has been denied a new trial by Judge Wickens of the Bartholomew circuit court. Reed was sentenced to from two to fourteen years in the state prison.

STATE TO TAKE ADVANCED STEP

Insane Patients to Be Turned to Profitable Account.

THE "COLONIZATION" METHOD

In Connection With the Eastern Hospital For the Insane at Richmond: Farm Will Be Dotted With Cottages in Which Will Be Placed Harmless Patients. Who Will Cultivate the Farm for the State's Profit.

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 25.—Trustees of the Eastern Indiana hospital for the insane have brought suit to condemn 150 acres of land in Center township, this county, which, if obtained, will be used for colonization purposes, as outlined by Dr. S. E. Smith, superintendent of the insane hospital, and approved by Governor Marshall. John L. Kempton and wife, the owners of the land, are made defendants.

The hospital trustees assert that they have offered a reasonable sum for the land, but the owners have refused to sell. A fund of $75,000 has been appropriated by the state to further the colonization plan, which is regarded as an advanced step in the treatment of the insane.

Under the plan proposed those not violently insane will be placed in cottages and allowed to cultivate the farms, the profits going to the state.

CAR DEMOLISHED

Five Persons Injured When Auto Ran Into Train.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 25.—When an automobile owned by Frank Navelle of Dunington, Ind., collided with a Lake Erie & Western passenger train three miles from this city, Mrs. Navelle and a daughter were seriously injured and three other occupants of the car were bruised.

Mr. Navelle was coming to Lafayette with his wife, daughter Ruby, son Clarence and nephew, Lee Larch. The curtains on the machine were down and the five passengers had no view of the track. The passenger train was in a deep cut and was running at a speed of sixty miles an hour.

The automobile struck the side of the baggage car of the passenger train and was completely demolished. All of the occupants of the machine were thrown out and were scattered along the side of the railroad track.

Out on Light Bond.

DRUGGIST RECOMMENDS

Vinol For Run-Down People.

If any one person should know the value of medicines it is the druggist who dispenses them and from our experience we want to say if people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to supply the demand.

This is because Vinol is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of cods' livers without the oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run-down, overworked and tired women, should try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

WHAT VALUE IS AND WHEN IT IS

You want value for the money you spend, and you have your own idea of what values is, for you. It may seem style and looks; it may mean good long, substantial service, it may mean several other things, according the way you look at it. To us it means all of these things, and an assurance that you should be satisfied wholly.

Mark Storen of Scottsburg, is said to be Taggart's candidate for the speakership of the next house of representatives. He says that he is not an aspirant for the place, but there are indications that Taggart's machine will pick him for the place if the trick can be turned.

The Pennsylvania Line has placed several new steel coaches in service between Indianapolis and Louisville. They were used for the first time Sunday and attracted considerable attention as they passed through the city. The cars are some larger than the regular wooden coach.

A number of the farmers and stock buyers in Jackson county have received announcements of International Live Stock Exposition which will be held at Chicago stock yards November 30 to December 7. Types of animal best suited for the demands of the market will be shown, and instructions given as to how to produce more and better beef cattle.

The Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern Railroad has added an attractive feature to its night service in each direction between Cincinnati and St. Louis. Lounging and sleeping cars have been put into operation on the train leaving Cincinnati 9:00 p. m. arriving in St. Louis 7:28 a. m., and on the train leaving St. Louis 9:15 a. m. The new cars provide a library equipped with the current magazines and daily newspapers similar to accommodations at home or in the club.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

FAREWELL PARTY.

Mrs. Ed Moening entertained the members of the Ladies Society of the German Lutheran church at her home Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Mary Rothkopf who intends to move to Indianapolis this week for future residence. She was presented with a book as a remembrance of that society. Elegant refreshments were served and all the guests enjoyed a very pleasant time.

GETTING IN BILLS OF SHORT COURSE

Officers of the Association Held Meeting This Afternoon to Ascertain Financial Standing.

NEXT SESSION AT NEW ALBANY

Farmers Are Unusually Busy and It is Said This Kept Many From Attending Demonstrations.

The officers of the short course association held a meeting at the office of Clark B. Davis this afternoon to check up the items of expense of the meetings last week. Considerable work is involved in completing all the figures for all the bills were not filed this morning and quite a number of persons who sold tickets had failed to make their report. For these reasons it was not known how the final accounts would stand, although it is thought that the course would not be a losing proposition. The principal items of expense were for traveling expenses and hotel bills of the lecturers. Under the agreement by which the short course was sent here, the local association paid all the expenses connected with the course, although this did not include the salaries of the lecturers.

The instructors packed up their equipment after the last lecture Saturday afternoon and left for New Albany where the short course began this morning. G. M. Frier, who is in charge of the course, said Saturday afternoon that the instructors were very well satisfied with the attendance and were greatly pleased with the interest shown. The attendance was not as large as was expected, but he said that this was probably due to the fact that the farmers had an unusually large amount of work and that their failure to attend was more probably due to this than to a lack of interest. However, most of the meetings were fairly well attended and at a few of the sessions the lecture rooms were filled.

The officers of the association are also pleased with the results of the short course and believe that it was of much benefit to the farmers of the county. Those who realized the value of such lectures and demonstrations were given here regretted that every farmer in the county could not have arranged to attend them for what he would have learned would have more than paid him for his time and expense.

The possibility of a short course here next year has been discussed in a general way and the majority of the farmers who were interested in the one this year are in favor of repeating the lectures. However, no definite arrangements have been made along this line and probably none will be made until late next summer.

December Strand Magazine.

Rider Haggard commences a new story in the December Strand entitled "Smith and the Pharaohs" which promises to equal in interest the best of his former famous stories. Arthur Morrison, F. St. Mars, Austin Philips, C. C. Andrews, E. Nesbit and other wellknown fiction writers also contribute stories. The articles are more than ordinarily interesting. Mary Shaw, the actress, discourses amusingly on the subject of "Stage Hands" while T. C. Bridges contributes a startling article on "Record-Breaking Run Riot." Herbert Du Pareq writes on "The Early Days of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer" and pays a fine tribute to the genius of England's foremost statesman, Mr. Lloyd George. "Fox farming is the history of a curious new industry which has lately sprung up in Canada and which, according to the writer, is more paying than gold-mining. Lieutenant J. P. Muller, the crack athlete of the Royal Danish Engineers, writes on "Fifteen Minute Exercises."

Domestic Diplomacy.

"Henry!"
 "Yes, my dear."
 "There's 60 cents missing from your pay envelope."
 "Yes, love."
 "Well, what did you do with it?"
 "Don't be crazy, dearest. I'll explain. You remember, don't you, that I've been calling you up every day to tell you how much I loved you?"
 "I remember perfectly, but what has that to do with the 60 cents?"
 "Why, you see, sweetheart, the boss charged me 10 cents for each telephone call."
 Yes, dear reader. She believed it.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Old Time Floggings.

An act of the time of Queen Elizabeth ordained that vagrants were to be "stripped from the middle upward and whipped till the body is bloody." Fourpence each was the recognized charge made by the "whipman" for every male and female vagrant who passed through his hands, but on special occasions this sum was exceeded. Says the constable's account of Great Staughton, Huntingdonshire: "May, 1691.—Paid in charges taking up a distracted woman, watching her and whipping her next day, 8s. 6d." After whipping people according to the statute the authorities sometimes gave them a letter recommending constables and others "to be as charitable as the law permits."

Striking Clocks.

According to historians, the first striking clock was imported into Europe by the Persians about 800 A. D. It was brought as a present to Charlemagne from Abdalla, king of Persia by two monks of Jerusalem.

GAS IN DAVIESS

Drillers Burned When Torches Ignite Unexpected Flow.

Washington, Ind., Nov. 25.—Excitement is intense in Reeve township, following the discovery of a strong flow of gas on the old Griffin farm. The flow was encountered at a depth of 375 feet, in what is known as the Loggootee sand. The well has been capped, awaiting instructions from the officials of the J. H. Duffy Oil and Gas company of Pittsburg, which opened the well. The discovery of the gas at the depth it was encountered was wholly unexpected and the drillers were not prepared to take care of the flow. The gas ignited from the torches about the derrick and the housing was destroyed by fire, together with the clothing of the drillers.

A FEW LAST MINUTE CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Charming Presents That Cost
Little In Time or Money.

Any pretty trifle made to contain pins makes an acceptable gift for Christmas. A traveling convenience that is as useful at home as abroad is made after the manner of the old time needlebook that rolled up. The foundation of it is a strip of ribbon or silk—morooco and chamamois can also be used, likewise canvas—about six inches wide and twenty inches long. Lay this flat on the cutting board and cover it with two thicknesses of cotton batting. Put a layer of coarse white flannel next to this and then one of coarse holed white net. Bind the edges neatly together with a satin ribbon matching the outside of the convenience, and then turn up four or five inches of the bottom of the strip and tack the ends to form a pocket. About five inches from the top put a plump pincushion with corners reaching to the strip edges. Have this an inch and a half deep and stick it full of varicolored pins—blue, green, red, pink, white and the ordinary sorts. They will look best if stuck in in some ornamental manner. In the space above the cushion put black and white safety pins in several sizes.

A Neckwear Gift.

If you are in a hurry to get together a very presentable last minute gift take a look into your lacebox and rescue a few bits of lace and net, then set to work on a stock collar and jabot like the one seen in the illustration. A wide piece of fillet lace forms the high collar, which is edged at the top with folds of malines and black velvet.

The "fall" is of gathered malines in two layers, each one trimmed with insertion matching that used for the collar. A pump bow of black velvet finishes the pretty gift.

An Easy to Make Jacket.

A combing jacket is something any woman would appreciate, especially if it is as pretty as some of those the shops are showing. The dainty things in the big stores are all but absolutely shapeless, two perfectly straight breadths being used to form a sort of jaunty kimono sack, with pointed back and front. The two lengths have the ends cut bias, this shaping making the front and rear points, and the sleeves are made by catching the breadth edge to edge under the arm. White flannel combing jackets are pretty with blue or pink satin ribbon bindings.

Make a Crochet Buckle.

The girl who crochets can turn out in a few hours several of the crocheted buckles like the dainty one pictured.

CROCHET BUCKLE.

Mercerized white cotton of a rather coarse number is used. Velvet ribbon is looped through the buckle with charming effect.

Take a Little Tip From Santa!

Dear Friend and Brother:

Also Dear Sister

As you are pretty well aware, I am quite extensively interested in the Christmas trade and am particularly well posted concerning the delivery end of the business. In the past my reindeer have been pretty badly overworked at the last moment because a lot of careless and shiftless people failed to shop early. My friends the letter carriers, expressmen and deliverymen of the stores, and also the girls in the shops, have had the same trouble, and we all want to ask you as a special favor to us to are mosquitoes. As they sting they put deadly malaria germs in the blood. Then follow the icy chills and the fires of fever. The appetite flies and the strength fails; also malaria often paves the way for deadly typhoid. But electric Bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; gives you a fine appetite and renews your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucerna, N. CHRISTMASY TRIFLES.

Make Somebody Happy by Giving Her a Reticule.

Every Christmas needleworker this year is making a reticule for somebody. There is a craze at present for these graceful bags, and styles range from simple affairs of linen for use with next summer's frocks to the most elaborate bags of satin and gold lace, to be carried with opera and theater costumes. Such a bag, if it is to be successful must be fashioned with the very best of materials, and a really handsome bag of this sort may easily cost $4 or $5 for the materials alone, though the finished models in the shops, especially the imported models, are tremendously expensive. The handsomest reticules are made of heavy, soft satin, veiled with gold lace or metallic net and ornamented with the tiny ribbon flowers which may be bought all ready to apply. Simpler bags of satin, embroidered with silk or chenille and braided with gold or silver cord, are very effective also, and most dainty theater bags may be made of Dresden ribbon, lined with soft, heavy satin in a delicate pastel tint. The large reticule is always perfectly flat in shape and is usually in envelope style, with one side buttoning over the other at the top. A thin strip of whalebone should be inserted inside the lining across the top of such a reticule.

Quaint Effects In Pincushions.

A charmingly quaint little pincushion and one that can easily be made by the girl who can handle a needle, is the Brownie cushion. Hunt up one of your long neglected friends, the plug pong ball, and with watercolors paint a weird looking face upon it. Then take a piece of sateen the color you wish to dress Brownie in and cut it five inches long by three inches wide. Sew this tightly at each end to form ears that stand away from the head and gather the rest up behind to make the little baldheaded cap, then paint in a little fringe of hair to peep out underneath the cap, which will improve the looks of Brownie.

A small, tight body is made out of a ball of raw cotton. This is so covered with sateen to match the cap and sewed down fast in the back. Arms and legs are made by covering wide ribbon wire with pale pink satin ribbon. These are attached to the cotton body before the dress is put on, and they can be bent into any funny posture you wish. It is cunning to have Mr. Brownie look as if he were sitting down in crossleg fashion like a tiny tailor.

In his two hands he holds a bow of narrow ribbon with a long loop attached. This serves to hang the little fellow up with if you wish to have him at the side of your dressing table. No one wants to stick cold steel into this dear little fellow, so at his back you sew fast a long narrow cushion in which you may run all the pins and needles you wish without marring the quaint looks of your little friend.

The doll cushion illustrated is a charming trifle made of ribbon and cream satin touched up with water colors.

A Utility Square.

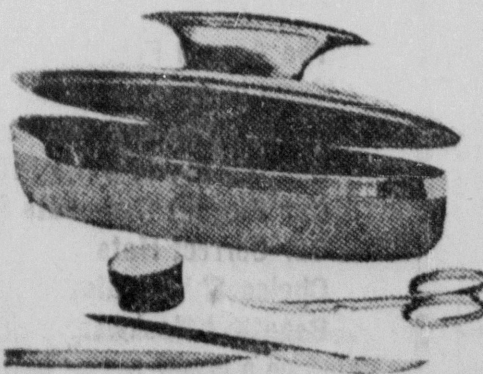

If you have a friend who lives in a boarding house she will appreciate the gift of a utility square.

This is simply a fifty-four inch square of china silk, cretonne, silk-linen, linen or any soft material that will take little room in a suitcase and which is used to throw over a chair on which underclothing has been put to air when it is necessary to open the door to admit a bellboy, maid or any stranger who may knock.

The edges of the square are either finished with a plain hem, hemstitched or fringed. Fringed edges are most graceful. If plain material is chosen a flower or some attractive conventional design is embroidered in each corner.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Seymour Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful. Does it ache especially after exertion? Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms suggest weak kidneys. If so there is danger in delay. Weak kidneys get fast weaker. Give your trouble prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Your neighbors use and recommend them. Read this Seymour testimony.

Mrs. George Kramer, 206 S. Broadway, Seymour, Ind., says: "A member of my family was greatly distressed by disordered kidneys and was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. I publicly recommended this remedy in 1910 and at this time I am glad to still hold Doan's Kidney Pills in high esteem."

"When Your Back is Lame—Remember the Name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Kramer had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Advertisement.

Where the Danger Lay.

An English clergyman says that when he came to a certain place as vicar he asked whether there were any sick to be visited.

"Oh, no, sir?" was the answer. "No body is ever ill in Berrybarbor. There is an old man, to be sure, over ninety, who has taken lately to his bed, but there hasn't much the matter with him that I know of."

"I thought to myself," added the vicar, "of the story of the Scotchman who said to his doctor:

"Ye put a verra long face, doctor. Dye think I'm dangerously ill?"

"Na, na," was the reply. "I don't think ye're dangerously ill, but I think ye're dangerously old."

Escapes An Awful Fate.

A thousand tongues could not express the gratitude of Mrs. J. E. Cox, of Joliet, Ill., for her wonderful deliverance from an awful fate. "Typhoid pneumonia had left me with a dreadful cough," she writes. "Sometimes I had such awful coughing spells I thought I would die. I could get no help from doctor's treatment or other medicines till I used Dr. King's New Discovery. But I owe my life to this wonderful remedy for I scarcely cough at all now." Quick and safe, it's the most reliable of all throat and lung medicines. Every bottle guaranteed. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

First Printing Press.

The first printing press in the eastern settlement of America was set up in 1638. In the summer of that year a ship bearing a printing press, a printer and three pressmen arrived on the shores of New England, the printer being Stephen Daye. In the same year the press was set up at Cambridge. One of the earliest and perhaps the most celebrated of the issues was "The Bay Psalm Book." It is interesting to know that the actual press is still preserved. After various wanderings in Boston, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Vermont it was found in Windsor county and presented to the Vermont Historical society.

Helps a Judge In Bad Fix.

Justice Eli Cherry, of Gillis Mills, Tenn., was plainly worried. A bad sore on his leg had baffled several doctors and had long resisted all remedies. "I thought it was a cancer," he wrote. "At last I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and was completely cured." Cures burns, boils, ulcers, cuts, bruises and piles. 25 cents at The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind. Advertisement.

To Cure Snoring.

"At a banquet," said an editor, "I once heard Jerome K. Jerome make a speech on snoring. I remember that it ended with these words: 'To cure snoring it is advised that a piece of soap be dropped into the mouth of the snorer. The oil in the soap will lubricate the pharynx and other Latin parts of the throat. This remedy must be applied with caution; otherwise the snorer will arise and lubricate the floor with the person who dropped in the soap.'"

A King's Logic.

George IV. of England prided himself on lifting his hat to every one who saluted him in public, but once it was observed that he bowed to every one on the street till he came to a man who swept a crossing, whom he passed without notice. He explained the matter afterward, when points of etiquette were under discussion, by saying, "To salute a beggar without giving him something would be a mockery, and to stop for the purpose of bestowing sixpence would wear the semblance of ostentation in a prince."

The Writing on the Ground

By Wilbur D. Nesbitt

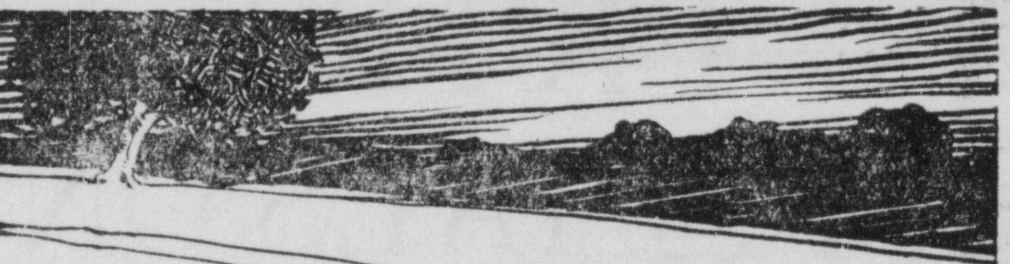

"And again he stooped down, and wrote on the ground,"—John viii, 8.

So, one by one, They went and left the woman standing there, Each feeling that through guilt he needs must shun His neighbor's knowing glances, unaware That this same neighbor, too, with hanging head And hurried footsteps went upon his way. All startled at the words he had but read— Forgetting all the words he meant to say. Perhaps the message traced by fingers just Was this: "O, blinded Kindred of the Dust!"

But no man knows What words were written plain across the path, If he who stooped and wrote, and then arose, Set down a sentence filled with biting wrath Or if he wrote of peace, upon the sand; Or if, with soft compassion, that wise youth Showed them, with firm and swiftly moving hand, The very core of God's eternal truth. Perhaps he wrote this saying of great worth: "They also die—these judgments of the earth."

He looked and saw the woman, bowed in shame, (Such mercy was his kindness built upon That none was ever let write down her name.) And then, perchance, he swept the writing out And left the dust as it had been before. He said to her—and yes, to them, no doubt—"You are forgiven; go and sin no more." Perhaps he wrote a truth that aye will live: "The dust may sin; the dust may not forgive."

We none of us may ever understand, Yet this we know, in thought he did not pause— The words came quick and ready from his hand. It may be that we vainly search the skies For lessons that by us are never found, But which are seen if we but turn our eyes In contemplation deep upon the ground. Perhaps the message traced by fingers just Was this: "O, blinded Kindred of the Dust!"

LEFTOVER TURKEY.

THE remains of the Thanksgiving turkey, should any be left from the feast, may be used in various ways. An appetizing method of serving up the fragments is to make a scallop of them. Turkey may be scalloped in several ways, as follows:

Plain Scallop.—Cut the meat cleanly from the bones of the turkey. Butter a pudding dish and put in a layer of bread crumbs unless there is enough of the stuffing left for this. Moisten with a little milk. Over this place a thick layer of the meat, sprinkling with salt and pepper and bits of butter; then more crumbs, more meat, and so on, until the dish is finished, covering with the crumbs. Before these go on pour in slowly the gravy, or if this was all used up, a gravy made from the bones and well seasoned. Put plenty of butter on the top layer of crumbs, bake covered for half an hour, then uncover and brown.

A Dainty Use of Fragments.

Scalloped With White Sauce.—Make a pint of white sauce, cooking together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour until they bubble and pouring on them a pint of milk. Stir until the sauce is smooth. Season with celery salt and a half teaspoonful of onion juice and mix into it small pieces of cold turkey. Turn into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle crumbs over the top, dot with bits of butter, bake covered half an hour. Uncover and brown.

Scalloped With Oysters.—Prepare the cold turkey as for either scallop for which the directions have been given, using oysters with it at discretion. A dozen to a pint of oysters may be used, according to your liking or supply of turkey. Moisten with the oyster liquor.

HAY'S HAIR HEALTH

Restores color to grey or faded hair; Cleanses, cools and invigorates the Scalp. Removes Dandruff—thereby giving the hair a chance to grow in a healthy natural way and stopping its falling out. Keeps hair soft and glossy.—Is not a dye.

$1.00 and 50c at Drug Stores or direct upon receipt of price and dealer's name. Send 10c for trial bottle.—Philo Hay Specialties Co., Newark, N. J., U. S. A.

KEEPS YOU LOOKING YOUNG

C. C. LOERTZ, A. J. PELLES, GEO. F. MEYER.

Instead of with milk. Bake for fifteen minutes only in a steady oven.

Toothsome Fare.

Scalloped With Sausage.—If the supply of cold turkey is limited supplement it with cooked sausage, placing this and the turkey in the buttered pudding dish in alternate layers, covering the top with crumbs, moistening all with gravy and baking as you would another scallop.

Scalloped With Stock.—Add to well seasoned stock an egg for every cupful of cold turkey you have, cutting the meat into small pieces. Turn this into a well buttered pudding dish, cover with crumbs, salt and pepper and stick bits of butter over the top. Bake and brown.

S.S.S. CURES CHRONIC CATARRH

When we say S. S. S. cures chronic Catarrh we do not mean that it merely checks the symptoms for a time. Some local applications will do that by simply cleansing and soothing the irritated mucous membranes. But all the while the cause which produces Catarrh is left in the system, and as soon as the local treatment is left off, the trouble returns with all its annoying symptoms. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impure catarrhal matter and at the same time building up the system by its unequalled tonic effects. It goes into the circulation and attacks the disease at its root, and removes every trace of impurity that is causing the trouble. Under the purifying effects of S. S. S., the inflamed membranes are healed by rich, pure blood which is carried to these parts, the offensive discharge from the nose ceases and severe headaches and neuralgic pains are no longer felt. In fact every symptom of Catarrh disappears, the stomach is toned up and the disease is thoroughly cured. Thousands of chronic cases of Catarrh of the most stubborn character have been completely cured by the use of S. S. S. The inflammation which produces chronic Catarrh can never be permanently relieved until the cause has been removed from the blood. This S. S. S. will do, and then nature hastens the return of perfect health. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all.

The Root of Evil

By THOMAS DIXON

Copyright, 1911, by Thomas Dixon

As the two men drew thus closer and closer together, Stuart's bearing toward Nan became guarded, and at last their relations strained. She met his new attitude with deep resentment and growing wonder. Her firm conviction was that he had become interested in another woman. From the first she had suspected Harriet Woodman, and had inevitably linked her coming with Stuart's change of feeling.

With the liberal use of money she made the acquaintance of a member of the chorus of the grand opera company who agreed to report to her every movement in Harriet's life.

At the beginning of the season the usual quarreling of the stars gave to the young singer the opportunity of her life, and Nan's friend reported that the little golden haired understudy was suddenly booked to sing the leading role in "Faust" on account of the illness of the star.

Nan, believing Harriet would fail, asked Stuart to spend the evening in her box at the opera—the first time he had allowed himself to be alone with her since their return from the cruise.

"Yes, Nan," he answered quickly. "I'll go with pleasure. A little friend of mine is to sing a great role tonight. I'm so glad you're going. I want you to hear her and help me applaud."

If Harriet should succeed tonight—the thought was suffocating to Nan—tomorrow her name would be on the lips of thousands and a new star would be shining in the musical world.

Stuart took Harriet to the stage door on his way for Nan. As the cab wheeled up Broadway he was in a fever of excitement over the outcome of the night's work.

"You're horrible, unfair, little pal, for them to thrust you into such a position with only a few hours' rehearsal."

"I'm only too thankful for the chance, Jim," she answered.

At the stage door he held her hand in parting and whispered:

"My soul and body will be yours tonight, dearie. Remember that! I've permission from the manager to meet you behind the scenes after the last curtain. Be sure to wait a moment before you go to your dressing room."

"No, I'll see you in my room. I shall be so proud of it—the star's room for one night at least! The maid will show you the way."

"I will be in the Bivens' box, the second from the stage on the right. Don't forget to glance that way, now and then."

A look of pain clouded the fair face, but he could not see it in the shadows, and with a last warm pressure of her hand he was gone.

"I wonder if he does think of me still as a child?" she mused. "I wonder if he never suspects the storm within? Well!"

She smiled triumphantly. "I'll tell him something tonight in my song!"

Nan was not in an amiable mood when Stuart led her to the box in the millionaire's playhouse which New York society built to exhibit its gowns, jewelry and beautiful women.

As the moment for Harriet's appearance drew near, Stuart's nervous tension became a positive agony. The people were in a friendly mood of expectancy. The fact that she was an American girl and from New York was greatly in her favor.

The audience greeted her appearance with a burst of applause and waited for the first note.

Stuart was charmed with the effect of her personality in the character, before she moved. The long, beautiful golden hair, the innocent young face and her simple girlish costume made an instantaneous impression.

With the first sweet note from her throat every fear vanished. She sang simply, quietly, exquisitely, without effort, as a bird sings because the song bubbles from within. A ripple of surprised comment swept the audience and burst into vigorous applause at the close of her song. From start to finish Harriet received a continuous ovation.

The audience rose in their seats and greeted her with such a tribute of enthusiasm New York had rarely seen.

When Stuart had fought his way through the crowd and reached the stage he found her alone with her father in her room. Her head was resting on his breast, and he was stroking the fair young forehead with tender, caressing touch.

Stuart turned away from the scene and left them alone for a few moments. He found Nan and asked her to wait for him at the stage door in her automobile until he could give Harriet his congratulations.

She consented with a frown and begged him to hurry.

Her father was still there, and a crowd of musicians, singers and critics were waiting in a group outside to offer their congratulations. She was holding them back until his arrival.

"My glorious little pal!" he whispered, his voice choking with emotion. "I'm the proudest man in the world tonight."

"It's all your work, Jim," she said simply. "You suggested and willed it, and I've made good under your inspiration. I'd rather see the happiness on your face and hear your words of approval than all the applause of that crowd."

He turned and saw Nan standing in the doorway with a curious smile on her flushed face.

"May I, too, offer my congratulations, Miss Woodman?" she asked.

Harriet's little figure suddenly stiffened at the sight of Nan, but at the sound of her friendly voice relaxed and moved to meet the extended hand.

"Thank you, Mrs. Bivens," she replied cordially.

And then Stuart did something that sent a shock through every fiber of Nan's being.

As easily and naturally as a big brother he slipped one of his long arms around Harriet and looked down with frank admiration into her eyes.

"You see, Nan, she's mine. I raised her from a wee little mite. And this was such a cruel and dangerous experiment—she had no chance. It was impossible, but, God bless her, she did it!"

Nan made up her mind instantly to act on a plan that had been vaguely forming and tempting her for the past months. It was her trump card. She had hesitated to play it, but she would do it now without delay.

CHAPTER XXII.

Through Purple Curtains.

WHEN Nan made up her mind she acted with lightning rapidity. She would force Stuart to an avowal of love that would fix their relation beyond disturbance by the little singer.

She had too fine a sense of values to permit herself to become entangled in an intrigue.

She could wait and gain in power for the waiting. Her physician had told her that Bivens' days were numbered.

But on one thing she was determined. She must know that Jim loved her still, loved her passionately, madly as she believed he did. But he must say it. She had no difficulty in persuading Bivens to urge Stuart to visit their country estate in the mountains of North Carolina. The doctor had ordered him there to live in the open air.

The young lawyer refused to go at first, but Bivens urged with such pathetic eagerness he was compelled to accept.

It was a warm, beautiful morning the last week in March when he alighted on the platform of the little railroad station on the estate and took his seat beside Nan in her big touring car. The fruit trees were in full bloom, and their perfume filled the air. The hum of bees and the song of birds he had known in his boyhood thrilled his heart.

"It's glorious, Nan!" he exclaimed. "Your coming makes it perfect, Jim," she answered tenderly.

As the river made a graceful curve Bivens' house swept into full view—a stunning pile of marble 300 feet long, its tower piercing the turquoise sky in solemn grandeur. The stone parapet on which its front wall was built rose in massive strength a hundred feet from the ledge in the granite cliff before touching the first line of the white stones of the house itself.

At the end a formal garden had been built on the foundations of masonry which cost $100,000.

For an hour the car swept like a spirit over the miles of smooth macadam private roads Bivens had built. At each graceful turn his wonder increased at the luxurious outlay of millions.

From each hilltop as the huge gleaming castle came into view from a new angle, revealing its marvelous beauty, he thought with a touch of pity of the shuffling figure of the stricken man limping through its halls helpless, lonely, miserable. What strange pranks fate plays with the mighty as well as the lowly! So frail was the broken body now he did not dare risk a cold by taking a ride with his wife.

The machine turned suddenly up a hill and glided through two iron gates opening on the lawn, and the great white chateau loomed before them in a flash of blinding beauty. Stuart caught his breath. He shook hands with Bivens and was shocked to find him so weak.

The little man held his hand with a lingering wistfulness as he looked into his friend's strong face.

"You don't know how rich you are, Jim," he said feebly, "with this hand that grips like iron. I'd give millions to feel my heart beat like yours today."

"You'll get better down here," Stuart answered cheerfully.

"I'm trying it anyhow," he said listlessly. "Make yourself at home, old boy. This house is my pride. I want Nan to show you every nook and corner in it. I wish I could trot around with you, but I can't."

"As soon as you've changed your clothes," Nan said familiarly, "come down to the library and I'll show you around."

Stuart followed the man assigned as his valet to the electric elevator and in a minute stepped out on the fourth floor. He observed with a smile that his room number was 157.

"The idea of living in a huge hotel and calling it a home!" he mused, with grim humor. "Room 157—great Scott!"

His hostess showed him first the library. The magnificent room contained more than 40,000 volumes, bound in hand tooled morocco.

"The funny thing, of course," Nan whispered, "is that Cal has never read one of these exquisitely bound books."

"Why on earth did he make this room the most stately and beautiful one in the house?"

"Maybe he didn't!" she laughed. "I'm going to give you a privilege no mere man has ever enjoyed in this house before—I am going to show you my own rooms."

When the tour of inspection had been completed she led him to her own suit, which was located in the southwestern corner, overlooking the magnificent formal gardens with their artificial lake, fountains, statuary and a wilderness of flowers, and farther on over the beautiful valleys of the Swannanoa and the French Broad rivers. Beyond the river valleys rose range after range of mountains.

The magnificence of her bedroom was stunning. Stuart rubbed his eyes in amazement. She had taken herself seriously in the creation of this room, and had spent a round million on its ivory bedstead, its purple and gold velvet hangings, its wonderful carvings.

The picture she made standing in this wonderful room was one that never faded from his memory. The poise of her superb form; the fires that smoldered in the depths of her eyes; the tenderness with which her senses seemed to drink in the daring luxury; the smile that played about her lips, joyous, sensuous, cruel!

"It seems all a dream, Nan," he said, "I'm in my eyes and wake up directly. I thought your New York house a miracle. This is fairyland."

"Perhaps it would be," she said, looking at him a moment through half closed eyes, "if only the prince!"

A look of pain unconsciously clouded his face, and the sentence was not finished.

On the fourth day Nan planned a coaching party to ascend Mount Mitchell, the highest peak in the land of the sky, the highest point of ground that side the Rockies. She had taken this trip with Stuart sixteen years before. She was then but fifteen, and he had just begun to dangle at her heels. She did not tell him their destination.

The party consisted of half a dozen boys and girls whom Nan was chaperoning. Stuart, the footman and coachman. The start was made at sunrise. The morning was glorious, the air rich with the full breath of a southern spring.

At the foot of the first bill the coach suddenly stopped beside the banks of the Swannanoa river.

Nan leaped to the ground, drew Stuart with her to the rear of the coach, and raised her arms.

"Lift me up," she cried, laughing. He placed his hands under her arms and with a leap and a cry of laughter she was in the empty baggage rack.

"Now up with you!" she cried. In a moment Stuart was seated snugly by her side and the big red coach was rolling along the old road.

"Now, sir," Nan whispered, "do you know where you are going?"

Stuart nodded.

"To a certain peak among the clouds, where you and I once went a thousand years ago."

Nan nestled a little closer, or perhaps it was the swaying of the coach that made him think she did, and softly said:

"You remember this road?"

"I've seen it a hundred times in my dreams since that wonderful day. It winds along the banks of the Swannanoa for twenty miles, always climbing higher and higher until the river becomes a limpid trout stream. We stop at the old roadside, stay all night and next morning take the bridge path with the funny pack horses and climb to the first mountain top, still following the little stream."

"Fine, Jimmy, fine!" she cried, with girlish mockery. "Your geography lesson was perfect! You can walk home with me after school."

Stuart looked at her and broke into a laugh. Again they were boy and girl, and the only change he could see was that she was more splendidly beautiful at thirty-one than she had ever promised to be at fifteen.

"You remember how shocked you were in this same seat, Jim, that day in the sweet long ago when the old coach threw me into your arms?"

"Yes, I felt that I was taking a mean advantage of you."

"I thought you were an awful fool not to accept more gracefully and thankfully the providence which threw a pretty girl your way."

The coach gave a sudden lurch and threw her into Stuart's arms again.

"And now?" he cried laughingly, as he held her firmly for a moment to prevent her falling.

She blushed furiously, threw the ringlets of dark hair from her face and drew back to her position.

"Now, of course, it's unlawful," she answered with sober playfulness.

The man watched her slyly for the next half mile. She was very, very quiet.

They spent the night at the same old roadside and slept on feather beds. He hadn't felt the touch of a feather bed in years. He dreamed that he was at school again, a man of thirty-five, playing marbles with a crowd of towheaded boys, and they were beating him at the game while Nan was standing near, her long plait of black hair hanging down her back, laughing at him because he was bare footed!

They started next day at 8 o'clock with the pack horses to make the trip along the dim bridge trail, fourteen miles up the sides of frowning cliffs and over the tops of balsam crowned peaks to the summit of Mount Mitchell.

Nan led the way, mounted on a sure footed young stallion, and Stuart followed her on a little black mule he had selected from the barn for his exact likeness to one he had raised as a pet when a boy. The youngsters came struggling after them, mounted on an assortment of shaggy, scrubby looking animals that knew the mountain path as a rabbit knows his trail in the jungle.

At 1 o'clock they passed through the first series of clouds and out into the sunlight beyond. The next line of clouds was dark and threatening and suddenly poured rain. Slowly but surely the horses picked their way up the mountain side through the storm and suddenly walked out into the sunlight again; they looked down on the smooth flat surface of the clouds through which they had passed.

It was dusk when the party reached the summit. The horses were loosened to graze in the open field and the guides hurried to build a fire in front of the cave made by a projecting ledge of rock beneath which the party was to sleep.

The bed of balsam boughs was too sharp a contrast to Nan's million dollar room to permit Stuart much sleep. Besides, the youngsters were giggling and laughing and joking most of the night. Only a big log marked the partition wall between the men's and women's part of the cave. The space was so limited it was necessary to sleep close together. The girls and boys never grew tired cracking silly jokes about the magnificence of their sleeping quarters. In vain Nan begged for quiet. It was 3 o'clock before they were still at last and she fell into a deep sleep.

Stuart rose, sat before the log fire and watched the regular rise and fall of her bosom as she slept like a child. On a distant mountain side he heard the howl of a lonely wolf. Sixteen years ago the mountains were full of them and they came quite close. He was reminded of the narrowing strip of the savage world, fast disappearing before the march of civilization. Somewhere inside of him he heard the lonely cry of another wolf.

"She's mine—mine! Nature gave her to me in the morning of life—I was a fool. I should have taken her by force, if need be, and she would have thanked me in after years. She has complied with the conventions of society and trampled the highest law of life. Why not smash convention now at the call of that law?"

Again the wolf howled in the distant darkness, and it seemed the echo of his own mad cry. He waked from his reverie with an angry start. He shuddered that he could have harbored the thought for a moment.

The eastern horizon was beginning to glow with the dawn. He rose, walked to the summit and sat down on the pile of stones that marked the grave of Professor Mitchell. He watched in silence until he saw the sun's red rim suddenly leap above the blue black peaks of the east and drive the last shadow of the night from the valleys below. With their fading mists he felt the darkness lift from his own heart and the sunlight of reason stream in. A new joy welled up from the depths of his spirit. He was alive to his finger tips, and his imagination glowed with the consciousness that life was strong and clean and worth while.

"With the help of God I'll keep it so, too!" he cried. "I'm ready for the fight now. Let it come."

He knew instinctively that it was coming. He felt it in every word that had fallen from Nan's lips since they left on this trip. He felt it most keenly of all when she was silent, read it in the tremor of her mouth, the shadowy tenderness of her eyes, the low, deep tones of her voice.

DOCTORS FAILED AGAIN

THE GREAT REMEDY SAVED HER.

I am now in very fine condition, thanks to your medicine, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Ten years ago I was taken with kidney and liver troubles and it becoming very severe, I started to take different medicines supposed to cure these diseases and also doctored with well known physicians, but nothing seemed to help or cure me and all the time I was failing very fast until I became confined to my bed. One day I received a sample of Swamp-Root and noticed an improvement immediately after taking same. I then bought a fifty cent bottle and the improvement was so wonderful that I continued taking Swamp-Root until now am in such fine condition that I am running a rooming house with notion store in connection. I highly recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to any one having kidney or liver trouble in any of its various forms.

Yours truly,

THREATEN TO TIE UP HUGE STEEL PLANTS

Labor Troubles at Pittsburg Growing Serious.

Pittsburg, Nov. 25.—Demanding an advance of 70 cents a day, six hundred more trainmen employed in the yard and mills of the steel corporation plants have quit. Nearly 1,000 trainmen are out in the Homestead and Edgar Thomson plants, and at the Carnegie furnaces.

The seriousness of the present strike was fully realized when officers of the steel company said the three big plants may be forced to shut down. This would put in idleness 20,000 men, the combined working forces of the plants. The men, gathering in groups in the streets of Homestead and Duquesne, assert they will force the company to accede to their demands or start the biggest strike since the Homestead strike and riots of 1892.

Since the Homestead strike of 1892 the mills of Monongahela and Turtle Creek valley have maintained the open shop, the Carnegies first and the Steel corporation officials later, repulsing all attempts at unionizing.

HOCKIN IN JAIL

Iron Workers' Secretary Not Trusted by Judge Anderson.

Indianapolis, Nov. 25.—Herbert S. Hockin, secretary-treasurer of the Iron Workers' International union and a defendant in the dynamite conspiracy case, was taken in custody at the direction of Judge Anderson in federal court and will be held in the Marion county jail until he is able to give $20,000 bond.

Judge Anderson said he believed Hockin could not be trusted and that, in the interest of his bondsmen, he believed the defendant ought to be turned over to the marshal. Hockin has been at liberty under a $10,000 bond, signed by his attorneys.
